

BRIEF BIO

Legrand Design is a San Francisco based lighting design company that has been in business since 1995. Chris Legrand draws from a theatre, dance, fashion and video background to find the inspiration to realize the client's vision. He specializes in lighting for live video and webcast events, where close collaboration with the director and the video department is crucial to the success of the event. Legrand Design provides both the practical and the creative spark needed to achieve the client's production goals.

Chris Legrand derives his design skills from a life-long background in theatre and production. The University of Washington theatre program honed the skills that finally brought him to the SF Bay Area to work in production. Starting at Stagecraft Studios in Berkeley and then moving across the Bay to Holzmueller Productions, he developed his depth of knowledge in the practical ways of producing theatre and corporate events. After joining the ranks of the freelance designers in 1995, he provided lighting design and project management services for a variety of companies and most often, corporate end-clients. Ultimately, he is driven by his well defined sense of responsibility to committed goals, where deadlines are accepted, managed, and met.
